Context of the research activity
Motivation and objectives of the research in this field	Making use of theories and methodologies within the fields of management, economics, and industrial engineering to address leading-edge research issues, which contribute to both scholars' and practitioners' debate. PhD students are free to propose a specific research project, clearly showing how it fits with the research objectives of the Department's research lines: https://www.som.polimi.it/en/research/ Admitted PhD students will conduct their research under the guidance of a supervisor.
Methods and techniques that will be developed and used to carry out the research	PhD students are encouraged to apply multiple methodologies (e.g., qualitative, quantitative, experimental methods) and research designs to develop and test their solutions, methodologies, models and theories.
Educational objectives	The DRIG doctoral program (Dottorato di Ricerca in Ingegneria Gestionale) offers advanced training in leading -edge areas at the core of the scientific community's debate and of practitioners and policymakers' interests. The doctoral school requests each student to spend a minimum of six months at a foreign research institution. During this period, students receive additional financial support. See here for further details: https://www.som.polimi.it/en/course/phd/
Job opportunities	Thanks to competences and skills developed during their

	doctoral training, candidates often achieve high-ranking job positions in the realm of research, innovation and general management. The DRIG program paves the way to careers in universities, research organizations, firms, start-ups and regulatory bodies. The candidates often receive invitations for post-doc positions from Italian and foreign universities. The strong connections the Department has with other universities, research institutions, firms and regulatory bodies boost the employability of DRIG PhDs laureates.
