Communication skills

During my work experiences and training in Kosovo and Switzerland, I have gained interpersonal communication skills. Having a critical and analytical way of thinking enabled me to engage in debates, to discuss important issues, but at the same time to maintain a good relationship with other people. Moreover, I enjoy co-work because I find myself quite friendly and easily adaptive to new environments.

Organisational / managerial skills

I have been volunteering at AIESEC at the University of Fribourg in Switzerland where we have organized events and workshops for students. By volunteering, I have seen the impact it had on me because it has shaped even more my organizational skills. Worth mentioning is my working experience at the Ministry of Diaspora and Strategic Investments in Zurich, while by being in charge of the project manager, I had to maintain with the documentation, relationship with people and meet deadlines. This period of working was such an improvement to me because it gave me the most valuable practice in the sense of being concise, responsible and effective.
